SPIRITUAL CONVENTION.

National Convention of Spiritualists.

Representation of Spiritualist Sentiments—Speeches—Short and Pithy Speeches—Great Enthusiasm.

[Reported for the New-York Times.]

PORTLAND, Me., Sunday, Aug. 7, 1859.

This Convention came together this morning at 9 o'clock, and from that time until 1 P. M. the Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. A few Spiritualists from other places in the State were present, but the great majority of those only, from the neighboring towns in this State, who could spare the time from their business to come, otherwise than by railroad, and who could not afford the pecuniary ability to pay the fare of a dozen or more of their friends, to enable them to come, were present. As the trains came in, they were crowded to their utmost capacity, and even larger vehicles were loaded to, and beyond, their capacity. Those who do not know what it is to travel with a crinoline pendent, can form no adequate idea of the difficulty of getting off. I am loath to listen to the tale of woe.

FIRST DAY—Morning Session.

The Convention was begun this morning with the appointment of officers, as follows: Hon. J. H. LOVELAND of Boston, President; Messrs. [illegible] Wright and B. F. Shillaber, Vice-Presidents; and Messrs. J. M. Kinney of [illegible], and Dr. A. B. CHILD of Boston, Secretaries. Messrs. A. E. Newton of Boston, editor of the Spiritual Age, C. S. Rickman, Portland, D. [illegible] Portland, J. G. Woodman, Portland, Dr. [illegible] and H. G. Wright of Boston, A. Business Committee had also been appointed, consisting mainly of the same names.

The first committee-appointment was the subscriber, by Mr. NEWTON, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, of an elaborate [illegible] of RESOLUTIONS by SPIRITUALISTS.

[illegible] Convention to the Boston [illegible] Convention, as well as the [illegible] Convention, is yet open to receive [illegible] Spiritualists, and larger figures are looked for, in consequence of many possibly being in the cars, when the doors were closed. There also do not appear to be any of the Quakers here, that is to say, none who are in the habit of attending their Conventions. As is usual, the crinoline predominates, and the gentlemen will get along [illegible] as they can, or go off. I am loath to listen to the tale of woe.

SECOND DAY—Morning Session.

The Convention of the Convention was begun this morning with the appointment of officers, as follows: Hon. J. H. LOVELAND of Boston, President; Messrs. [illegible] Wright and B. F. THIRD DAY—Morning Session.

The Convention of the Convention was begun this morning with the appointment of officers, as follows: Hon. J. H. LOVELAND of Boston, President; Messrs. [illegible] Wright and B. F. Shillaber, Vice-Presidents; and Messrs. J. M. Kinney of [illegible], and Dr. A. B. CHILD of Boston, Secretaries. Messrs. A. E. Newton of Boston, editor of the Spiritual Age, C. S. Still more numerous are the bearings of chemistry on those activities by which men obtain the means of living. The blacksmith, the tailor, the cotton-spinner, are severally concerned in processes that are well or ill done according as they do or do not conform to chemical laws. The commercial materials from which iron of copper, tin, zinc, lead, silver and iron are in a great measure products of chemistry. Sugar-refining, soap-boiling, wool-bleaching, gunpowder-manufacture, are operations all partly chemical; as are also those by which the potter gives the porcelain. Whether the distiller's work stops at the alcoholic fermentation or passes into the acetous, he and the brewer, if his business is conducted large, have to pay to keep a chemist on his premises. Science throughout is work on technology, and it becomes at once apparent that there is now scarcely any process in the arts or manufactures over some part of which chemistry does not preside. And then, lastly, we come to the fact that in these times agriculture, to be profitably carried on, must have like guidance. The analysis of manures and soil; their adaptations to each object; the use of gypsum or other substance for fixing ammonia; the utilization of copro-lites; the preservation of artificial manures—all these are branches of chemistry which it behooves the farmer to acquaint himself with. So it is the lucifer match, or its unstinched sewage, or its photographic or bread made without fermentation, or perfumes extracted from refuse, we may perceive that chemistry affects all our industries; and that, by consequence, knowledge of it concerns every one who is directly or indirectly connected with our industries.

And that the science of life—biology—does not this, too, bear fundamentally upon these processes of indirect self-preservation? With what we ordinarily call manufactures, it has, indeed, little connection; but with the all-essential manufacture—that of food—it is inseparably connected. As agriculture must conform its methods to the phenomena of vegetable and animal life, it follows necessarily that the science of those phenomena is the rational basis of agriculture. Various biological truths have indeed been empirically established and acted upon by farmers while yet there has been no conception of them as sciences; such as that particular manures are suited to particular plants; that crops of certain kinds unfit the soil for other crops; that horses cannot do good work on poor food; that such and such diseases of cattle and sheep are caused by such and such conditions. These and the every-day knowledge which the agricultural guides by experience respecting the right management of plants and animals, constitute his stock of biological facts; on the largeness of which greatly depends his success. And as these biological facts, scanty, indefinite, rudimentary though they are, aid him so essentially, judge what must be the value to him of such facts when they become positive, definite and exhaustive. Indeed, even now we may see the benefits that rational biology is conferring on him. The truth that the production of animal heat implies waste of substance, and that therefore, preventing loss of heat prevents the need for extra food—a purely theoretical conclusion—now guides the fattening of cattle; it is found that by keeping cattle warm, fodder is saved. Similarly with respect to variety of food. The experiments of physiologists have shown that not only is a change of diet beneficial, but that digestion is facilitated by a mixture of ingredients in each meal; both which truths are now influencing cattle-feeding. The discovery that a disorder known as "the staggers," of which many thousands of sheep have died annually, is caused by an entozoon which presses on the brain; and that if the creature is extracted through the softened place in the skull which marks its position, the sheep usually recovers; is another debt which agriculture owes to biology. When we observe the marked contrast between our farming and farming on the Continent, and remember that this contrast is mainly due to the far greater influence science has had upon farming there than here; and when we see how, daily, science there is making the adoption of scientific methods more general and necessary; we shall rightly infer that very soon agricultural success in England will be impossible without a competent knowledge of animal and vegetable physiology.

Yet one more science have we to note as bearing directly on industrial success—the Science of Society. Without knowing it men who daily look at the state of the money market, glance over prices current, discuss the possible crops of corn, cotton, sugar, wool, silk, weigh the chances of war, and from all those data decide on their mercantile operations, are students of social science; empirical and blundering students it may be; but still, students who gain the prizes or are plucked of their profits, according as they do or do not reach the right conclusion. Not only the manufacturer and the merchant must guide their transactions by calculations of supply and demand, based on numerous facts, and tacitly recognizing sundry general principles of social action, but even the retailer must do the like; his prosperity very greatly depending upon the correctness of his judgments respecting the future wholesale prices and the future rates of consumption. Manifestly, all who take part in the entangled commercial activities of a community are vitally interested in understanding the laws according to which those activities vary.

These, to all such as are occupied in the production, exchange, or distribution of commodities, aquaintance with science in some of its departments is of fundamental importance. Whenever is immediately or remotely implicated in any form of industry (and few are not) has a direct interest in understanding something of the mathematical, physical and chemical properties of things; perhaps, also, has a direct interest in biology; and certainly has in sociology. Whether he does or does not succeed well in that indirect self-preservation which we call getting a good livelihood, depends in a great degree on his knowledge of one or more of these sciences; not it may be, a rational knowledge; but still a knowledge, though empirical. For what we call learning a business, really implies learning the science involved in it; though not perhaps under the name of science. And hence a grounding in science is of great importance, both because it prepares for all this, and because rational knowledge has an immense superiority over empirical knowledge. Moreover, not only is it that scientific culture is requisite for each, that he may understand the how and the why of the things and processes with which he is concerned as maker or distributor; but it is often of much moment that he should understand the how and the why of various other things and processes. In this age of joint-stock undertakings, nearly every man above the laborer is interested as capitalist in some other occupation than his own; and, as thus interested, his profit or loss often depends on his knowledge of the sciences bearing on this other occupation. Here is a mine, in the shares of which many shareholders rutled themselves from not knowing that a certain fossil belonged to the old red sandstone, below which no coal is found. Not many years ago £20,000 was lost in the prosecution of a scheme for collecting the alcohol that distills from bread in baking; all which would have been saved to the subscribers, had they known that less than a hundredth par. by weight of the flour is changed in fermentation. Numerous attempts have been made to construct perpetual motion engines, in the hope of superseding steam; but had these, who supplied the money, understood the general law of the correlation and equivalence of forces, they might have had better balances at their bankers. Daily are men induced to aid in carrying out inventions which a mere tyro in science could show to be futile. Scarcely a locality but has its histories of fortunes thrown away over some impossible project.

And if already the loss from want of science is so frequent and so great, still greater and more frequent will it be to those who hereafter lack science. Just as fast as productive processes become more scientific, which competition will inevitably make them do; and just as fast as joint-stock undertakings spread, which they certainly will; so fast will scientific knowledge grow necessary to every one.

That which our school courses leave almost entirely out, we thus find to be that which most nearly concerns the business of life. All our industries would cease, were it not for that information which men begin to acquire as they best may after their education is said to be finished. And were it not for this information, that has been from age to age accumulated and spread by unofficial means, these industries would never have existed. Had there been no teaching but such as is given in our public schools, England would now be what it was in feudal times. That increasing acquaintance with the laws of phenomena which has, through successive ages, enabled us to subjugate Nature to our needs, and in these days given the common laborer comforts which a few centuries ago Kings could not purchase, is scarcely any degree owed to the appointed means of instructing our youth. The vital knowledge—that by which we have grown as a nation to what we are, and which now underlies our whole existence—is a knowledge which has got itself taught in nooks and corners; while the ordained agencies for teaching have been mumbling little else but dead formulas.

We now come to the third great division of human activities—a division for which no preparation whatever is made. If by some strange chance not a vestige of us descended to the remote future, save a pile of our school books or some College examination papers, we may imagine how puzzled an antiquary of the period would be on finding in them no indication that the learners were ever likely to be parents. "This must have been the recreation for their spare hours," we may fancy him conjecturing. "I perceive here an elaborate acquaintance for many things desirable for rearing the hosts of ancient nations and of civilizing nations, (from which indeed it seems clear that these people had very little work resting in their own compass) but I find no reference whatever to the bringing up of children. They could not have been so careless as to omit all training for this gravest of responsibilities. Evidently, then, this was the school course of one of their monastic orders."

Seriously, is it not an astonishing fact that though on the treatment of offspring depend their lives or deaths, and their moral welfare or ruin; yet not one word of instruction on the treatment of offspring is given to those who will hereafter be parents? Is it not astonishing that the fate of a new generation should be left to the chances of waywardness or folly, to be dealt with by the suggestions of ignorant fondness, joined with the suggestions of ignorant fury and the prejudiced counsel of grandmothers? If a knowledge of arithmetic and book-keeping are requisite for all who would escape the evils of unthrift and folly, and look for tolerable success in business, how much more imperative is it that a knowledge of the laws of life and health should be sought by those who undertake the responsibilities of parentage! Not a few of our young men do, indeed, devote some eight years of their youth to the acquisition of a smattering of Latin and Greek; and some number of them may, perhaps, spend a year or two in the study of medicine. But how many are there who, before they undertake the responsibilities of parentage, devote any time to the study of those laws on the due observance of which depend the health and life of their children? Not one in a thousand! Nay, the great majority of us do not even know that there are such laws! Not one in a thousand of us, when our children are ailing, or even when they are dying, has any other idea than that they are the victims of a mysterious dispensation against which it is impious to rebel! Not one in a thousand of us, when our children are ailing or dying, has any other idea than that he is the victim

It will be seen from our special telegraphic report from Washington, that the statement we published in relation to the President's efforts with Mr. [illegible], late of the Union, was strictly correct, [illegible] the dignity of the Constitution, [illegible] himself will probably publish a [illegible] the report of our correspondent.

A Committee of Vigilance (Committee) was recently organized in Kansas, for the purpose of taking men [illegible] in the act, or the extensive gangs of horse thieves and robbers which have long infested the Territory. The operations of the Committee, according to the Leavenworth Times, have been [illegible] of late. One or two men have suffered [illegible] penalty, and others have been compelled [illegible] their crimes and expose their accomplices. By this means sufficient knowledge has been obtained to secure the breaking up of the gangs, and the Committee has now been disbanded.

By the arrival at Leavenworth of the express from Denver City, we have advices from the Pike's Peak region to the 20th ult. Great excitement is reported to existing at the mines, in consequence of the discovery of rich diggings at [illegible] of the Colorado.

[illegible] of the American Scientific Association, yesterday, were possessed of unusual [illegible]. Prof. SILLIMAN, Jr., called attention to the subject of lightning on gas-pipes. The question of the increase of danger to dwelling-houses from the introduction of pipes, was discussed. Prof. PARSONS read a paper on the personal peculiarities of astronomers, and Prof. LOOMIS read [illegible] on the Laws of Storms. A paper on the geology of the Rocky Mountains, by Mr. WILLIAM P. BLAKE, attracted considerable attention. Various other subjects of interest were discussed.

It is positively stated, on the authority of a United States Marshal, that a cargo of six hundred Africans has recently been landed on the coast of Florida, near Pensacola. The vessel in which they were imported was set on fire and abandoned.

In the Board of Councilmen last evening, the Comptroller of the Corporation was requested to inform the Board at its next meeting, if the property bounded by Greenwich and West streets, North River and Thirteenth-street, is not owned in fee simple by the Corporation of this City. The Mayor vetoed a resolution remitting a tax of $244 56 on the Church of St. Ann, as he considered such action would be unjust to other taxpayers. His Honor also vetoed the resolution directing that the contract for constructing the Gas Works of the new Reservoir should be awarded to FAIRCHILD, WALKER & Co. The Street Commissioner was directed to fit up the third story of Firemen's Hall for a library for the use of the Department, and for the use of the Commissioners and Committee on Fire Department of the Common Council, at an expense not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars. The same sum was appropriated to throw open and fit up Washington-square as a public Park. A resolution appropriating $1,500 to defray the expenses of an Address of Congratulation, to be delivered by visiting Albany, on the chartered rights of the City, was [illegible] for a constitutional vote, and was [illegible] on the table.

It is said on good authority that ROBERT C. MACDONALD, the alleged murderer of VIRGINIA STEWART, has [illegible] privileges by the prisoner, [illegible] to return him to the Tombs. Immediately after the inquest [illegible] the Metropolitan Hotel, [illegible] he proceeded to enjoy himself at a disreputable house in Crosby-street—reaching the Tombs after library of two hours and a half's duration. On Saturday, subsequent to his arraignment before Recorder RAMSAY, he left the Court [illegible] for the purpose of proceeding immediately to the City Prison, in custody of two officers of the Court of General Sessions. Two hours and a half elapsed, however, before the officers of the City Prison received the prisoner.

It is a weakness not peculiar to the Haytians.

The South and the Deluge.

Southern journals of the Democratic faith are just now considering among themselves what should be done in that direful emergency, the election of a Republican President. All agree that it would be a very dreadful thing indeed, and call for a tremendous exercise of Southern valor, patriotism and forecast. But, unfortunately, there is a difference of opinion among our chivalrous brethren as to the precise course proper to be adopted. The Advertiser of Edgefield in South Carolina, for example, is comparatively moderate in its views. It expresses the opinion that the election of a Republican would not of itself be deemed by the South a sufficient cause for dissolving the Union. Many Southern men, indeed, it admits, would be in favor of that decisive step, but, on the whole, it thinks there is reason to doubt whether the requisite unanimity could be obtained in favor of immediate dissolution. Not that the journal in question, for its own part, would hesitate to "dissolve." Oh, no! But there are so many weak brethren who still hanker for the flesh-pots of the Federal Egypt, that the gallant and glorious South would probably continue for a while longer to bear the Federal yoke.

Far otherwise, however, does the Columbia Southern Guardian, reason out the case. Referring to its Edgefield compatriot, that central organ of South Carolina Democracy holds the following high language:

"We differ widely with our cotemporary when he infers that the people of the above-named States, will quietly submit to the election of a Black Republican President. Kentucky possibly might stand it, but that would be the only one. With due deference, moreover, if our recollection is right, the people of some of the above States, assembled in their political conventions, have expressly declared that the election of a Black Republican President would justify the South in providing for her own safety.

Numerous and heavy as have been the former concessions of the South, they would sink into insignificance compared with a tame submission to the rule of a Black Republican Administration. Although the 'election' might be constitutional, it would be the election of a man pledged to trample that Constitution under his feet—the delivery of the Government to a party pledged to violate that Constitution by the immediate passage of laws prohibiting Slavery in the Territories.

We think our cotemporary has been carried away by his attachment to the Democratic Party—'the Old Guard' as he calls it, and by his confidence in their success at the approaching election. Notwithstanding the article we have commented upon, we think, should the alternative be presented to him of submission to a Black Republican Administration or disunion, that, with the memory of other days around him, and the teachings of CALHOUN and McDUFFIE—the impression of which cannot be effaced entirely—once more being called to remembrance, our cotemporary would make choice of disunion."

These be brave words, my masters. But we seem to have heard something not unlike them before. Our Southern kinsmen may rest fully assured that an effort will be made by "the Black Republicans" to elect a President next year. And these people are so infatuated as to think the success of their candidate would not necessarily rend the Union in twain. No do the Republicans believe that Kentucky is the only Southern State which will "stand it." They rely with confidence upon South Carolina also. When the time of trial truly comes we are ourselves strongly of opinion that nine Southern men in ten, even in South Carolina, will think it better to bear the Black Republicans they have than fly to other ills they know not of, were it but for no better reason than that which THOMAS JEFFERSON gave to his correspondent, Mr. TAYLOR, for tolerating the Union sixty years ago.

Mr. TAYLOR, who was the mover of the famous Madison Resolutions of 1798, wrote to JEFFERSON suggesting the propriety of preparing for a dissolution of the Union, and a reconstitution of Virginia and North Carolina into a separate nation. The wily sage of Monticello, while admitting the force of Mr. TAYLOR's observations, mildly dissented from his notion that an immediate rupture with the other States should be urged, on this curious ground: "Seeing that we must have somebody to quarrel with, I had rather keep our New-England associates for that purpose than see our bickerings transferred to others nearer home. They are circumscribed within such narrow limits, and their population is now so full, that their numbers will ever be the minority; and they are marked like the Jews with such a perversity of character, as to constitute, from that circumstance, the natural division of our parties."

Our Southern friends will hardly deny the "New-England perversity." Mr. JEFFERSON knew his men, a "stiff-necked and rebellious generation," impracticable, obstinate, disputatious, delighting to be in the minority. The South could find no such within her borders, and her eloquent orators would be reduced to talking each other to death on the blandest home questions. Let the "Black Republicans," then, fight their fight, and let our Southern friends resolve to meet their fate, be it what it may, with a firm front and an equal mind.

American Railway Iron and Pennsylvania Politics.

The Philadelphia North American publishes several conclusive testimonials as to the superiority, both in point of durability and cheapness, of rails made of Pennsylvania iron, over the imported British iron. An experiment was tried on the Central Railroad of Georgia to test the qualities of the two kinds of rails, the result of which has proved in the highest degree favorable to the rails of our own manufacture from American iron. This road was supplied in 1856 with part imported and part American rails; they were laid on opposite sides of the same track for a long distance, so that their qualities might be fairly tested, under perfectly equal conditions. The rails were of the same pattern, and an extravagant price was paid for the English rails to insure the best quality of iron. After more than [illegible] years of wear the General Superintendent of the Road has given his report, from which it appears that the American rails were much better than the imported ones. Testimony of this character will, of course, have its due weight, and the managers of our Railroads, though they do not, as we are compelled to admit, always act with that sagacity and [illegible] which are so characteristic of our countrymen in the management of their private affairs, will in time, no doubt, learn to make use of home rails, and then the rolling mills [illegible] blast furnaces of Pennsylvania will [illegible] forth into full operation. But the North American cannot close such a chapter of [illegible] without a fling at the Democracy [illegible] and says: "Years of impenetrable darkness on this point have closed the Treasury coffers to all light, and they would do anything, however foolish or absurd, to maintain their position while they are in office." But our countrymen are not lying in impenetrable darkness if the Treasury coffers are, and they do not require any special legislation to induce them to purchase American iron if it can be demonstrated that it is better and cheaper than the foreign article; and, if it be not, why should they be compelled to buy it? They may be safely left to their own instincts to discover where they can purchase the best and cheapest merchandise. It is a faculty they have long had the credit of possessing at least.

The Revelation and the Peace.

While awaiting those explanations of the real origin and character of the peace of Villafranca, which cannot fail to be given at the Conference of Zurich, and in the final settlement of the bases of the new order of things in Italy, it is worth while to fix public attention for a moment upon the part which the Italian Revolutionists have probably played in the recent drama. Immediately upon the breaking out of the struggle in Italy, the TIMES secured the services of a correspondent representing the extreme section of the Italian Republicans, the "left of the left," as it might be described in the jargon of European revolutionary politics. The letters of this correspondent have never ceased to breathe a spirit of hatred to the French Emperor and to France, which was but half-suppressed during the brief and brilliant campaign of Lombardy, and which flamed out into a very Moscow conflagration of rage, vituperation and despair on the morrow of the peace of Villafranca. When GARIBALDI first took the field in the service of Sardinia, our revolutionary watchman exultingly declared that the "Hero of Rome" would pay no heed to any French orders, and gloried in the notion that the name of France was not to be mentioned in the proclamations which the valiant Cacciatori degli Alpi would scatter on their way as they marched through the valleys of the Alps, and swept the Austrians back from the passes of the Tyrol. It is needless for us to say that GARIBALDI took particular trouble to falsify all these foolish and discreditable stories. A soldier, and a man of sense, he did his duty by himself and by his allies, and there is no reason in the world for supposing that he will now be guilty of the extravagances into which fanatics of the school to which we allude would have urged him from the first. Whenever there is a sensible plan of action to be carried out for the good of Italy, there GARIBALDI will be found; but he has probably broken forever with all the wild and wordy dreamers, whose incapacity was proved to him so bitterly in Rome ten years ago. An article by MAZZINI, which we yesterday published, reveals the whole of that picture of which our Revolutionary correspondent in Italy has given us so many significant glimpses. MAZZINI is what he has been, the Revolutionary Bourbon of Italy, who has nothing to forget and nothing to learn. Bred from his youth up in conspiracy and stratagem, he sees "occult designs" and "subtle treason" on every side of him; and he openly avows in this latest of his manifestoes that he has never for a moment sympathized with the movement of Italy under the leadership of Sardinia, never for a moment trusted the Emperor of the French, never for a moment relaxed his efforts to excite premature discussions and vexatious dissensions in the heart of Italy, while the battle of her independence was fighting out on the Lombard plains, and the blood of French and Sardinian soldiers was flowing so freely in defence of her right to exist and to be free. This manifesto has been interpreted by those who take the sound for the sense, and to whom the word Republican has always one meaning, whether it fall from the lips of a RIENZI or a WASHINGTON, as a crushing indictment of willful treason to the cause of Italy against NAPOLEON III. We do not read in it this meaning. We find it to be rather an indictment of witless treason to the cause of Italy against MAZZINI and his followers. With the fullest faith in the personal honesty and the political sincerity of this most indomitable and most unfortunate of fanatics, we are forced to see in this manifesto, as in the brief, sad history of his supremacy at Rome, the most flagrant evidence of his utter incapacity for practical leadership and statesmanlike mastery of the course of events. His counsels to Italy now are what his counsels then were to Rome. As he insisted, in 1849, that GARIBALDI should violate humanity and common sense by prolonging the resistance at Rome after the soldier's eye had pronounced the position untenable, so now in 1859 he calls upon the people of the various Italian States to rush madly into bloodshed and battle, before they can possibly know what has been done for them by Sardinia and France, and calls upon VICTOR EMANUEL to "die rather than be contaminated." The Papacy, whose roots shoot through the world and whose colossal fabric three hundred years of earthquake have barely begun to shatter, MAZZINI treats as a trivial structure, to be blown away by a single breath, and denounces those who would deal calmly with so tremendous a difficulty as temporising traitors to "God and the people." With such indications before us of the temper and policy of the extreme Italian revolutionists, it is not possible to doubt that the influence of this party must have been busily exerted throughout the whole of the recent campaign in Italy, to thwart the purposes and to complicate the situation of the liberating leaders.

The small practical help which the Franco-Sardinian armies, amid much shouting and tossing of flowers, received in Lombardy, speaks in the same sense. The sudden outbreak in Perugia, so untimely and so mischievous in its results, is still another trace of the same power. And we are very strongly of the opinion that, whenever the secret history of the recent Italian war shall come to be written, it will be found that the same party which ruined the prospects of Italian freedom in 1848 by its senseless and headlong excesses, did its best in 1859 to make impossible the full success of the Franco-Sardinian arms and of the policy of NAPOLEON.

The Tennessee Election.

The annual Tennessee Election took place on Thursday of last week, and though the results are not yet fully ascertained, enough is known to enable us to form a judgment as to the drift and tenor of the contest. It is known that the Democrats have reelected their Governor, ISHAM G. HARRIS, by 2,000 majority over Col. FLOURNOY, the candidate of the Opposition, and that the Democratic majority in the Legislature just chosen will be large enough for all practical purposes. But on the other hand, the Democrats have not certainly won, probably [illegible] seven Democrats to three Americans, whereas in the recent contest the Democrats are reported to have carried three districts, the Opposition five, and probably six, while the remaining district is in doubt, without any probability being intimated in favor of either of the contending parties.

The inference is unavoidable, from the data received, that the Democracy, although successful on the State ticket, have lost heavily in the Congressional Delegation, and that they have experienced serious reverses on the general result. Two years ago the opposing parties were the Democrats and Americans; now it would seem that all opponents of the Democratic Party united under the appropriate title of the Opposition, and with a degree of success, greater probably than they had ventured to anticipate. It is a noticeable fact, that the Tennessee Opposition borrowed no thunder from their opponents, presenting, in this respect, a marked contrast to their political brethren in Virginia and Kentucky. No attempt was made by them to out-Herod Herod in the advocacy of Southern ultraisms. On the contrary, the ground which they chose to occupy, and on which they won a substantial victory, is ground upon which the Conservative Northern Opposition can equally stand and fight in the approaching Presidential canvass.

What's in a Name?

Juliet's question, asked so many years ago, has been answered by Judge DALY of this City. The learned Judge has decided that there is really nothing in a name; and that what we call a rose, we are at perfect liberty to call by any other name that we may please to give it. There is no such thing as an alias possible, for the moment that Brown chooses to say he is not Brown at all, but Black or Green, that moment his color and his quality change. The Brown of the past disappears, and Black or Green is the fact to be acknowledged without dispute, inquisition, or act of the Legislature. Had Romeo known the common law he might have left his name of Montague on the wrong side of the Capulet garden-wall, and saved his own sweet life and Juliet's at the expense of the lean apothecary, the grave-digger, and posterity.

Through all these hot Summer days Judge DALY has been hearing and deciding cases, but his judicial eye has not become dimmed, nor has his clerical vigor abated, as an elaborate decision of his which we yesterday published, on the application of Mr. JOHN SNOOK for an order of the Court authorizing him to change his slightly unpopular patronymic for the more suggestive but also more euphonious name of PIKE, abundantly proves. In this decision Judge DALY has reviewed the whole history of English surnames, and while setting the mind of SNOOK happily at rest, has produced a paper of singular general interest, and announced a curious point in the law, somewhat novel in itself to the mass of readers, and by no means insignificant in its social bearings. Mr. JOHN SNOOK, it seems, finding when he arrived at man's estate that he was the victim of a ridiculous inheritance, sought counsel of a philological friend, who assured him that SNOOK was merely the Dutch for PIKE, and that he might fairly call himself PIKE since he had ceased to be in any sense a Dutchman. There was historical warrant for this advice. Many modern English names are mere translations of ancient French appellations, and in the Channel Islands particularly, instances are constantly to be met with in which one family has broken into two branches whereof the one retains the Norman and the other has adopted the English version of the original Gentile name, the one calling itself, for instance, Blanc-pied and the other White-foot. Mr. SNOOK put faith in his counselor; the more that he himself is so little versed in the mysteries of language that he insisted before the Judge on confounding the Dutch with the Germans; and from that moment, as Mr. JOHN PIKE, became a busy member of society in the city of Syracuse. In the course of his prosperous career, Mr. PIKE has found it desirable to come to the metropolis, and here he finds that the partner, not of his bosom, but of his business, objects to his convertible name and insists on the final obliteration of the detestable monosyllable SNOOK by some solemn and definite process of the law. An act of the State Legislature of 1847 permits the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas to authorize any person of full age residing in the State to assume a new name if the Judge is satisfied that the petitioner will derive any pecuniary benefit from the change. Under this act the victim of the name of SNOOK demanded relief at the hands of Judge DALY. The Judge equally conscientious, clear-headed and learned, found it impossible to bring Mr. SNOOK within the provisions of the statute, since the pecuniary benefit to be derived from this new partnership was not of that certain and positive character which would warrant the Judge in assuming it as a necessary consequence of the change of name proposed. But Mr. SNOOK was not sent away hopeless in his Snookdom. The Judge after traversing the whole field of English family history, and citing many striking and curious cases from the books in support of his position, declared that neither the act of the Legislature nor his own authorization was necessary to convert SNOOK into PIKE. "I think," said the Judge,

"There is nothing in the law to prevent the petitioner from continuing to call himself John Pike. If, as stated in his petition, he adopted it some years ago, engaged in business by that name, and is known among his business acquaintances and customers by that designation, there is no reason why he shall not continue to use it. Any contract or obligation he may enter into, or which others may enter into with him by that name, or any grant or devise he may hereafter make by it, would be valid and binding; for, as an acquired and known designation, it has become as effectually his name as the one which he previously bore. I have no hesitation, therefore, in saying that I think he may lawfully use it hereafter in all transactions as his name or designation."

The olden time was not very nice in names. They took their titles then as they took their lot in life, at the hands of Providence, and made the best they could of both. As a natural consequence the living generation has inherited a good many patronymics which make their fastidious possessors uncomfortable. No man likes to be known as Buggins, or Noggs, or Shufflebottom, however respectably the former owners of such names may have filled the measure of their days. Names, too, which have become notorious through some great crime or stupendous rascality, are troublesome legacies. It was but the other day that an English newspaper correspondent spent six days in prison in Brittany, and was otherwise misused, because he had the ill-luck to be named BAZAINE, and was confounded by the imperial police with the accomplice of ORSINI. And since the publication of the letter to Mr. McGEHEGAN, the name of BUCHANAN would certainly go far toward killing the hopes of any aspirant after the Presidential chair. Judge DALY's decision facilitates such a notable triumph of Democratic indecency, and [illegible]

[illegible] Democrats will [illegible] with [illegible] Democrats [illegible] Democrats will [illegible] Democrats [illegible] Democrats will [illegible] Democrats [illegible] Democrats will ARRIVAL BY THE HARBOR POLICE.—The crew of boat No. 4 of the Harbor Police, arrested six men from on board British bark Sunshine, lying at Jackson's dock, Saturday morning, for robbing July. They were sent to the Tombs. The men were Thomas Mooney, Patrick Mooney, William Hughes, John Ryan, John M. Smith.

THREATENING ASSAULT.—Charles Brennan, was arrested, on Sunday, charge with assaulting James Gill, a boy living at No. 181 Worth-street, and striking him upon the head with a plaster. Gill was taken home seriously injured, and Brennan was committed to the Tombs.

ARREST ON SUSPICION.—A boy, 15 years of age, named Thomas Kelly, was arrested, on Sunday, on suspicion of having stolen money and jewelry to the value of $200 from Mary Gleeber, of No. 200 Reade-street. The prisoner was taken to the Lower Police Court and committed.

The Broadway Tragedy—Extraordinary Proceedings—Robert C. Macomber.

A rumor was extensively current on Saturday that Robert C. Macomber, who is charged with the murder of Vincent Sampson, immediately after his arrival on his victim had been committed last Friday, had been seen, in company with the Detectives who were employed to return him to the Tombs, to enter a house of ill-fame in Crosby-street, where they remained an hour or two. We refrained from publishing the rumor, until we were fully satisfied of its truth, because of the prejudice effect of such a story against the prisoner, when his case should be brought to trial. An investigation by our reporter, however, leaves no room to doubt the facts alleged in the report, and the positive assertions of all the surroundings of its main features. The officials who were so accommodating as to aid in bail on a charge of murder are Officers Mannion, and Gunner, of the Sixth Precinct. They state that permission was given them by Coroner LAIRMAN to convey MACDONALD, at his own request, wherever he might choose to go, so that he was safely returned to the Tombs before dark. A carriage was accordingly procured, and the trio left the City Hospital about 2½ o'clock. First they went to the Metropolitan Hotel, where MACDONALD had an interview with a friend and transacted some private business. The three remained there about an hour, the officers never permitting the prisoner to leave their sight. They say they were in utter ignorance of the fact that they were doing aught of a representable nature, MACDONALD next proposed the officers should accompany him to the residence of a friend of his in Crosby-street. The obliging officials assented, and all three went to a house in that street, immediately in the rear of the hotel. The policemen say that they were perfectly uninformed as to the reputation of the house when they entered, and supposed it was occupied by persons of respectability. The ladies seemed glad to see MACDONALD, and wine was opened, of which they all partook. Soon, however, from the demeanor and conversation of the women, the officers suspected they were not of unsullied reputation, and their suspicions soon ripened to entire belief. After their innocent eyes had been fully opened, they say they hurried MACDONALD away from his friends, and proceeded immediately to the Tombs, where they arrived about 5 o'clock—having just spent two hours and a half in hunting up enjoyment for their gentle-manly prisoner. The policemen deny that part of the rumor which asserts that they carried several bottles of champagne to the Tombs for MACDONALD's special delectation, and in confirmation of the denial appeal to the prison regulations, which strictly prohibit the use of intoxicating drinks by prisoners. Cigars are luxuries upon which the prison rules place no ban, and of these the kind-hearted officers carried two boxes down to MACDONALD's quarters—procured from his Crosby-street friends.

On Saturday, early in the afternoon, the prisoner was arraigned at the Bar of the Court of General Sessions, to plead to the indictment for murder, which the Grand Jury had found against him. When he retired from the Court he was not immediately escorted to his cell. The Warden of the City Prison say he was returned to them about 5½ o'clock. Where he was in the interval, after he left the Court-room until 5½ o'clock, the two Deputy-Sheriffs who were commissioned to return him to the keeper of the City Prison, could doubtless reveal. It was an officer of the same Court who indulged Dr. GALLAGHER and allowed him to escape after he had been convicted of a felonious assault on the proprietor of the New-York Hotel—the doctor at the time leaving the official at least his hat in return for the privilege.

The New Gold Excitement.

Private letters have been received and published in this City confirming, what at first was regarded as doubtful intelligence respecting the alleged extensive gold discoveries in the district of Chiriqui, in New Granada. These letters are from parties living or sojourning at "Boca del Toro," or Chiriqui, on the Atlantic, and are dated July 8, 1858. They represent that within the previous three weeks a new El Dorado had been discovered. The Indian cemeteries of this country which contain the remains of tribes long since extinct, were found to contain immense wealth, in the shape of gold trinkets or idols, which, according to the customs of those tribes, appear to have been buried with their owners. These figures and images lie four or five feet below the surface, and are found, often in considerable quantities, deposited in small earthen pots alongside, or beneath the stone coffins which contained the dead. These are described in the patois of the country as zapos, salamones, camarones, boriguenos, aquilas, palomas, platos, y otros figuras de oro. Fifty thousand dollars in value of pure gold had been extracted. All the inhabitants of one town had deserted and gone to the placers. One man had hired a party of ten natives, to whom he pays a dollar a day with board, and a dollar premium for each idol which he may find. Californians were sent for to come and prospect for the source of all this wealth, which is supposed to reside in the mountains and streams which traverse the settlement. Another letter states that "all are flocking to this one cemetery, which is half a mile from Bugaba.

"C——, who lives at Dolega, writes me fully about the prodigious richness of these discoveries, and urges me to come at once. One man, who formerly lived with me, found in one day six gold plates, weighing each about half a pound. Another found a shark twelve inches long, and other relics of solid gold, such as tigers, bats, butterflies, deer and numerous objects, such as I——— sent you two years ago, only much larger; some the same size and some smaller. It is not in the coffins, made of rough stones, that these things are found, excepting, perhaps, the few ornaments placed on the Indian's body at the time of death, but it is under the bottom of the stone where the weighty treasure of the Indian at the time of his death is buried. This fact, now proven, explains why hitherto, in the immense cemetery of Bogueta, which covers all the savannah, nothing but stone figures and curious vases and other stone implements have been found. These objects were always placed alongside the coffin, according to Indian custom; and this I have seen done myself at Indian funerals when I have been among them in their native country. Was this simply mere funeral ceremony, or for the purpose of hiding their wealth from the Spaniards? I——— told me that when he showed the gold images he sent you to the Indian chief of the Blancos it caused him great emotion, and the cacique was thrown into fits by the fear, as he expressed it, that some Indian had betrayed the secret; but this was alleged when he heard that it was only by accident they were found. The mail-carrier tells me that at Dolega alone the people have got already about one and a half quintals of gold in these images—150 pounds.

"The source from whence came this gold is now what all will seek, and California miners will soon find it out. In the meantime these golden figures, which have at all times been discovered in smaller quantities, after a comparatively inexhaustible field for working, and more easier to be extracted than California or Australian gold. Not only the Cemetery of Bugaba, but also the extensive ones of the Boquete and the Bucucos, five or six miles from there, but hundreds of other ones, to this day unknown, are scattered all over this province and unknown region, both on the north and west sides of the Cordillera, are full of such relics. Burial Grounds, and other places, are full of such tombs. I have been through them all. This will, beyond doubt, lead to the discovery of the famous and renowned Gold Country of Tisigal. It is very certain that long ago searches through this region."

The author of the quotation of these quotations, in his letter, states that there has been an excitation in the Boston jewelry market, and the assertion of respectable parties in that metropolis, have assisted to increase the excitement which such discoveries naturally produce.

THE GREAT WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. PROFESSOR WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE

Says the St. Louis (Mo.) Democrat: "Below we publish a letter to Dr. Wood, of this city, from a gentleman in Maine, which speaks glowingly of the superior merits of his hair tonic. Such evidence must have its effect, when coming from a reliable source. If certificates are guarantees of truth, the Doctor needs no encomiums, nor useless puffery from the Press:"

BATH, Maine, Jan. 20, 1868.

PROFESSOR O. J. WOOD & CO.:

Gentlemen: Having my attention called a few months since to the highly beneficial effects of your hair restorative, I was induced to make application of it upon my own hair, which had become quite gray, probably one-third white; my whiskers were of same character. Some three months since I procured a bottle of your hair restorative, and used it. I now found it was proving what I had wished. I used it about twice a week. I have since procured another bottle, of which I have used some. I can now certify to the world that the gray or white hair has totally disappeared, both on my head and face, and my hair has resumed its natural color, and I believe more soft and glossy than it has been before for twenty five years. I am now sixty years old; my good wife at the age of fifty-two, has used it with same effect.

The above notice I deem due to you for your valuable discovery. I am assured that whoever will rightly use, as per directions, will not have occasion to contradict my statements. I am a citizen of this city and a resident here for the last fifteen years, and am known to nearly every one here and adjoining towns. Any use you may make of the above, with my name attached, is at your service, as I wish to preserve the beauties of nature in others as well as myself. I am, truly yours,

A. C. RAYMOND.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23, 1868.

WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.

PROFESSOR WOOD—Dear Sir: Having had the misfortune to lose the best portion of my hair, from the effects of the yellow fever, in New-Orleans in 1854, I was induced to make a trial of your preparation, and found it to answer as the very thing needed. My hair is now thick and glossy, and no words can express my obligations to you in giving to the afflicted such a treasure.

FINLEY JOHNSON.

AARONS RUN, Ky., Nov. 20, 1866.

PROFESSOR O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: I would fearfully be doing you a great injustice not to make known to the world, the wonderful, as well as the unexpected result I have experienced from using one bottle of your Hair Restorative. After trusting every kind of Restoratives extant, but without success, and finding my head nearly destitute of hair, I was finally induced to try one bottle of your Hair Restorative. Now, reader, and further, if possible, reader, to the whomever may read this, that I now possess a new and beautiful growth of hair, which I pronounce richer and handsomer than the original was. I will therefore take occasion to recommend this invaluable remedy to all who may feel the necessity of it.

Respectfully yours, REV. S. ALLEN BROCK.

P. S.—In continuation of my approbation for your valuable medicine (as most are aware, I do be assured) but if you think it worthy a place among the rest, insert if you wish, if not, destroy and say nothing.

Yours, &c., REV. S. A. B.

The Restorative is put up in bottles of three sizes, viz: large, medium and small; the small holds half a pint, and retails for $1 per bottle; the medium holds at least 30 per cent. more in proportion than the small, retails for $2 a bottle; the large holds a quart, 40 per cent. more in proportion and retails for $3 a bottle.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CITY INSPECTOR'S DEPARTMENT—NEW-YORK, July 16, 1860.—NOTICE TO BUTCHERS AND OTHERS.—On and after THURSDAY, the 26th of July, 1860, all blood, offal, dead animals, putrid or unsound meats, fish offal and other refuse substances must be taken to the offal dock foot of 45th st., North River.
The use of the offal dock at the foot of 45th st., East River, for such purposes, will be discontinued on and after the above date.
The following is a copy of the ordinances of the Common Council relative to the removal of offal, &c., &c.:
An ordinance to provide for the cleaning of slaughter-houses and the removal of offal, blood and filth therefrom. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, in Common Council convened, do ordain as follows:
Section 1. Every butcher or other person occupying any slaughter-house or building, or who shall occupy any slaughter-house or building in the City of New-York, any animal, shall, on every day, when any animal may be so slaughtered or killed therein, cause the slaughter house and yard thereof to be washed out and thoroughly cleansed, under the penalty of ten dollars for each neglect or refusal to comply with this section.
Sec. 2. Every butcher or other person within this City, immediately after killing or slaughtering any animal, shall convey, or caused to be conveyed in tight covered boxes or barrels, the blood, offal, garbage and other offensive or useless parts of said animal or animals so killed or slaughtered, to such place as the Common Council or the City Inspector shall or may from time to time direct, under a penalty of ten dollars, for each and every neglect or refusal to comply with this section.
Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the city Inspector to see that this ordinance is enforced.
Sec. 4. This ordinance shall take effect immediately, and all ordinances, or parts of ordinances, conflicting herewith are repealed.
Adopted by Board of Councilmen, May 15, 1860.
Adopted by Board of Aldermen, June 16, 1860.
Approved by the Mayor, June 18, 1860.
Notice is hereby given that a strict compliance with the requirements of the above ordinance will be enforced.
T. [illegible], to be used by the contractor for the removal from the city of substances at the foot of 45th st., North River, is designated and directed as the place to which the said blood, offal, &c., shall be conveyed, and from thence it will be taken by the contractor from the City.
DANIEL B. DELAVAN, City Inspector.

EXCURSIONS.

EXCURSIONS TO NO. 30 PLATT-ST., are constantly being made by sensible and enterprising merchants, from all parts of the country, for SPALDING'S PREPARED GLUE.

GRAND MOONLIGHT FLOTILLA, CONCERT, DANCING AND MUSICAL PROMENADE.—The large, commodious and magnificent Albany steamer RENSSELAER HUDDENA, will make a trip as the Hudson after West Point, accompanied by NOLL'S seventh Regiment concert and two quadrille bands, on TUESDAY, Aug. 9, offering the finest opportunity the people of this City will ever have to view the noble Hudson and its Highlands by daylight and moonlight. From the deck of the steamer, the beautiful villas, sloping lawns and superb residences of the merchant princes of New-York.
It is the intention of this management to spare no pains or expense to make this entertainment the no plus ultra of the season.
The up passage will be devoted to concert and promenade, her return passage to dancing. The main upper deck (100 by 30) for quadrilles; main after deck (30 by 60 feet) for waltzing; the stateroom hall (90 feet) long for promenade. Supper (under the direction of Mr. Etter, formerly of the Collins' line steamship Pacific) at 8 P. M.
The boat will leave Chambers-st., at 6 P. M.; 13th-st., at 6½ P. M. If the weather is unfavorable, the next fair day. Tickets, $1 (supper extra) admitting gentleman and lady, to be had of NOLL, CLARK'S, No. 371 Broadway, Astor House, St. Nicholas Hotel, Everett House, Stevens House. For particulars, see programme.

MONDAY, Aug. 8—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, Aug. 6, 1859, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of July 30:

Decrease in Loans	$409,343
Decrease in Specie	680,687
Increase in Circulation	408,091
Decrease in undrawn Deposits	1,950,040

Including the Clearing House operation of the week, which show the inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	July 30, 1859	Aug 7, 1858.	Aug. 6, 1859.
Capital	$68,645,000	$66,717,000	$68,645,000
Loans	119,347,412	120,802,867	118,938,069
Specie	20,764,564	25,145,844	20,083,877
Circulation	8,214,959	7,764,415	8,623,050
Gross Deposits	91,707,878	107,454,715	91,901,234
Exchanged	17,232,982	17,115,237	19,266,379
Undrawn	74,474,605	90,849,605	72,524,855
In Sub-Treasury	5,116,798	5,553,477	6,340,990

The Bank Statement, in respect to Loans and Specie, results much as anticipated in our weekly review of the movement of the week in this morning's paper. The Circulation goes up about $400,000 as usual on quarter day, when a considerable sum in small notes is employed in the settlement of rents and other quarterly dues. The Deposit line continues to go down, and is now lower by seventeen millions than on the 30th of April. The Specie Average remains above twenty millions, which is rather better than was looked for on the present statement. Owing to the heavy reduction in Deposits, the percentage of Specie is still 26 ⅌ cent. and a fraction, or full 6 ⅌ cent. above the Associated Bank standard. The Statement, altogether, is one that will add to the steadiness of the Money Market, without relaxing the caution of the Banks in regulating their Discount movement to the exigencies of the Fall trade and exchanges. To-day we notice very little variation in the market from the state of things at the close of last week. There is a quiet feeling in respect to both Discount and Loans on demand. Foreign Bills for the Boston mail, are thus far dull at 110@110¼ on London, and f.5.15@f.5.13¾ on Paris. No direct steamer sails until Saturday, when about $500,000 Mexican Silver, received on Saturday last, and $300,000 additional due from New-Orleans, on Friday next, will probably go forward. No Gold shipments are yet spoken of. The Customs to-day are $91,000; other receipts into the Sub-Treasury, $126,000; Disbursements, $219,000; balance this afternoon, $5,339,508.

The Stock Exchange, on most of the list of sales to-day, shows a fair degree of firmness, and prices leave off better than on Saturday by ¼ ⅌ cent on New-York Central, Michigan Central, Rock Island and Galena; ¼ ⅌ cent. on Panama, and 1¼ ⅌ cent. on Pacific Mail—the last-named rising this afternoon to 75 ⅌ cent. Reading is also firm, and the other Coal Stocks, except Cumberland, which remains depressed, are in demand. The weak spots in the Share dealings are a decline in Hudson River to 30 ⅌ cent. and a further decline in Toledo to 20 ⅌ cent. Michigan Guaranteed a fraction higher than on Saturday, but the common shares depressed. Erie is quiet at 5 ⅌ cent. In State Stocks we note an improvement of 1@1¼ in Missouris and Tennessees, and an improved demand for United States Fives of 1874, at 101¼ ⅌ cent. The general market in the afternoon left off steady. The announcement was made by telegraph, from Albany, that the New-York Central Directors will, at their meeting to-night, declare three per cent. as the August half-yearly dividend, which is understood to be in pursuance of the advice of a large body of their influential shareholders on both sides of the Atlantic, not to encroach upon the contingent funds of former years, but confine their present dividend within the net earnings of a half year of unusual depression in Railway traffic generally, and, for most of the time, of damaging competition between the great trunk lines. This result had been discussed for some weeks among the Stockholders and Directors, and also upon the Street, and the announcement had but little influence either way this afternoon.

The Stock Exchange Board this morning, by unanimous vote, restored Mr. JACOB LITTLE to his seat, vacated by his temporary embrasement last May. It is understood that Mr. L. has adjusted all his contracts then outstanding and running against him, at the full measure of a hundred cents on the dollar, with interest.

We invite attention to the following offer of $650,000 of the Guaranteed 7 ⅌ cents. of the State of Missouri, which constitutes part and parcel of the authorized Public Debt of that State. The high and trustworthy character of all the parties to this offer, will commend their card to public confidence:

We do not feel called upon to indorse this or any other particular plan of consolidation, but certainly deem it important that the subject should be early and amply discussed preliminary to the annual election in October, and in view of the appointment of a Receiver under the following order of the Courts:

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court held in and for the State of New-York, at the Court-house in the village of Norwich, in the county of Chenango, on the 1st day of August, 1859. Present—The Hon. CHAS. MASON, one of the Justices of the said Court. James Brown and John C. Bancroft Davis, Trustees, and Daniel Drew vs. The New-York and Erie Railroad Company.—Venue Broome County.—Motion for an order appointing a Referee to appoint a Receiver of defendants, and for instructions to Receiver.

Motion on complaint and affidavit of Drew and affidavit of Davis.

Motion granted and William Mitchell, of New-York City, named Referee to appoint Receiver, and directions to Receiver settled.

Complaint and affidavits and order as settled directed to be filed with Clerk of Broome County.

HENRY A. TAILER, Plaintiffs' Attorney,
No. 45 Wall-st., New-York.

A. S. DIVEN, counsel for plaintiffs, for the motion.

The defendants appeared by Ralph Squires and stated they neither assented to nor resisted said motion. A copy. JAMES G. THOMPSON, Clerk.

SUPREME COURT—BROOME COUNTY.—James Brown and John C. Bancroft Davis, Trustees, and Daniel Drew, a Stockholder, Plaintiffs, vs. The New-York and Erie Railroad Company, Defendants.—At a Special Term of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, held at the Court-house at Norwich, and in the County of Chenango, in said State, on the 1st day of August, in the year 1859.

Present: The Hon. CHARLES MASON, Justice.—A motion by the plaintiffs, in this suit for the appointment of a Receiver of the property and franchises of the New-York and Erie Railroad Company, the defendant herein, and a New-York Corporation, coming on to be heard, and the counsel for the parties having been heard, and upon the affidavits of Daniel Drew and A. C. Bancroft Davis, and it appearing that for a period of more [illegible] motion has been regularly served upon the said Company and said Corporation, also appearing upon said motion, that said Company, by its counsel, appears in behalf of the plaintiffs, and consents to the appointment of a Receiver, and that it also appearing that the mortgage mentioned in the complaint, and dated the first day of August, 1857, and known as the fourth mortgage of said Corporation, was duly executed and delivered by said Corporation, as alleged in said complaint, and was thereupon recorded and filed, and became a valid lien on the property therein mentioned, and upon all the corporate estate, property, effects, franchises, easements, and other things therein described or conveyed; and that a large number of bonds have been issued by said Company, which are secured by said mortgage, and the same are outstanding and unpaid; that the interest upon a portion of the said bonds is due and unpaid since the first day of April now last past, and that the said Corporation has not the means of paying said interest, nor the proceeds and profits of said mortgaged property that should of right go to pay said interest is likely, but for the protection of a Receivership, to be diverted to other purposes; and, further, that the Trustees have been requested to institute this proceeding, and that the institution of the same and the order was necessary for the proper application of the income of said mortgaged property, and securing the payment of said interest. And it appearing that the said, the New-York and Erie Railroad Company, is in a condition of insolvency, and that the mortgaged premises are a county security for the mortgage debt.

And further, that the plaintiffs pray, among other things in said complaint, for a Receiver of all the effects, property and franchises of the said Corporation to operate and run the said Railroad pending this suit.

Now, on motion of Mr. Diven, of counsel, for the plaintiffs, it is ordered that a Receiver be appointed of said Corporation, and of the Railroad, and real and personal property and estate of the New-York and Erie Railroad Company, and of all the property appertaining, privileges, franchises and powers, on which said fourth mortgage is a lien, or which is created thereby, and of the rents, tolls and income of the same, and of the powers and franchises of said Corporation, and of its title deeds, and leases, and rights thereunder, and reversions, may or all of the above-said property, income, tolls, rents, powers, and franchises may be retained, collected, exercised, and enjoyed, and whether in the State of New-York, Pennsylvania, or New-Jersey, subject to the lien of said last two named States, and that said Receiver be authorized to run and operate said road, and exercise said authority and franchises, and to preserve said property in proper condition and repair, so that it may be safely and to the most advantage used, and to protect the title and possession of the same, and to employ such persons and make such payments and disbursements as may be reasonably needful or proper in so doing, and for advice about his duties, and that said Receiver be authorized to demand possession and control of all property and franchises, documents and rights assigned to him, or of which he is appointed Receiver, and to collect the income, tolls and profits of the same, and to make the requisite payments therefrom. And that he pay the expenses of this application and the reference hereby appointed, and, also, the arrears now due and maturing, and to arise and mature to the employes upon the said Railroad, and the amounts due and maturing, and to arise and mature, for material and supplies about the operation and for the use of said road; and that he pay the rents and taxes due and to grow due from said Corporation, and the sum due and to grow due for the rights, franchises and property of said Corporation in the State of Pennsylvania to said State.

That the Receiver open new accounts of the money received and paid out by him, under the immediate supervision of competent agents, and cause to be entered therein all the moneys received and paid out in the discharge of his Receivership, and that all surplus moneys beyond his current expenditures be deposited in some secure bank or banks in the City of New-York, and not to be drawn therefrom except on his order. And upon the accumulation of any sum exceeding $75,000, the same be deposited by the Receiver in the United States Trust Company, and that the same be drawn thence only on the order of said Receiver pursuant to an order of a Justice of the Supreme Court made on petition therefor.

That said Receiver make up his accounts monthly of all the monies by him received and paid out, and that he thereupon file the same in the office of the Clerk of the County of New-York.

That he receive and pay out all moneys and hold and protect all property to him assigned and operate said road in his capacity as Receiver. And it is further ordered that in the discharge of his duties said Receiver have authority to do all acts and things as to make all payments proper and reasonably requisite to the honest and efficient discharge and exercise of the powers and duties by this order and the laws and practice of this Court conferred upon him.

That he be authorized to employ such agents, assistants and counsel as may be reasonably needful and proper.

That he be authorized to settle and adjust and arbitrate all claims for damages, injuries and loss to persons and property, or otherwise, that may arise or be claimed against him as Receiver in the operation of said road, and the discharge of his trust as Receiver, and that he be authorized to pay such sums, from the property of his Receivership, on adjustment of such claims.

That said Receiver be authorized to institute and defend such suits connected with the property and duty of his Receivership, as in his judgment and by the advice of counsel should be proper and for the advantage of the property and rights to him committed, and to pay the proper expenses of the same and any judgment recovered against him as such Receiver in any such suit.

That said Receiver be authorized in all cases in which he has any reasonable doubt as to his duty to apply to a Special Term of this Court, or to a Justice thereof, by petition or otherwise, for instruction and directions as to the matters to which such petition shall relate.

That in and about the discharge of his duties such Receiver shall not, without an order or authority of this Court, dispute the validity of any of the mortgages of the said Corporation.

That said Receiver, upon entering upon the discharge of his duty, cause an inventory of all property by him received to be made and filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of New-York.

And the Hon. William Mitchell, of New-York, is hereby appointed a Referee to name and appoint the Receiver herein directed to be appointed.
